However, to allow the participation of all students the mixed teaching (both in person and online) will be maintained therefore all lectures will also be streamed through the Cisco Webex platform. For students who are unable to participate in the classroom activities, video recordings of the lessons will be made available on the Moodle platform for at least a week, or alternatively, teachers who do not record their lectures will provide alternative forms of didactic support on the e-learning platform (moodle).

N.B. It is necessary to register for all courses through the Moodle e-learning platform using the student credentials (matriculation and password).

with all the information about the Master, and the two distinct curricula:

- Economics (E) with a track in Economics and a track in Behavioural Economics.
- Development Economics (DE) which can be tailored to a Quantitative analysis for developing economies or to a Development Studies approach with the option of a Double Degree with the MSc in Development Economics of the University of Goettingen

Two curricula

The curriculum in Development Economics can be tailored to a Quantitative Analysis for Developing Economies, which equips students with advanced quantitative methods and skills for studying economic development phenomena or it can be oriented towards Development Studies, with a less technical and more interdisciplinary approach.

The curriculum in Economics can be tailored to a standard Track in Economics which equips students with the advanced quantitative methods and skills necessary to conduct both theoretical and applied research in economics, and to use economic and econometric methods to evaluate and formulate global and sectorial economic policies; or to a Track in Behavioral Economics which equips students with tools for theoretical and experimental analysis of individual behaviors and institutions, taking into account the effects of psychological, cognitive, emotional, cultural and social factors.
